Jean Beausejour's 34th-minute strike was enough to earn Chile their first World Cup victory in 48 years. The Chileans looked a very slick side and could be the dark horse of the tournament. Their one-touch play was both skillful and fast-paced. They totally dominated their Honduran opponents. Honduras goalkeeper Noel Valladares was kept busy throughout the match and his efforts kept the score to 1-0. On another day, this could have been embarrassing for Honduras. One player to keep an eye on is Chile number 7 Alexis Sanchez. His trickery on the ball and ability to glide past defenders was a joy to watch. It's no wonder he's a target for Real Madrid. After this performance, Chile must be confident of beating Switzerland and even Spain in their next matches.
