THE READING

From <https://breakingnewsenglish.com/2101/210126-candy-4.html>

There is a good way to get some extra cash for people with a sweet tooth. A candy company wants people to test its original sweets. It will pay $30 an hour. The Candy Funhouse requires "candyologists" to give feedback on its candy and chocolates. It has a huge range of 3,000 products but is always making new sweets. The candyologists will decide on new candies for the company's branded sweets. It hopes to improve its global reputation.

The successful applicants must have some basic qualifications. They must be enthusiastic, they must give honest opinions on the products they test, and they will also have to write a short description for each product they test. The company said the candyologists must be "passionate about confectionery," be fluent in English and have basic writing skills. They must not have any food allergies.
