THE ARTICLE

From <https://breakingnewsenglish.com/2105/210526-tinder.html>

The dating app Tinder has launched a new feature designed to help reduce online harassment. The app uses an algorithm to detect potentially abusive content contained in a message created by the user. Artificial intelligence is used to create a database that flags up examples of abusive or inappropriate language. After the author of the message presses 'send', a small box pops up that asks, "Are you sure?" or "AYS?" Developers at Tinder are optimistic the new feature will drastically cut the number of abusive messages sent on the platform. They say that while testing the app, the volume of such messages fell by 10 per cent. The new feature has been rolled out on English and Japanese versions of the app.

The Tinder dating app allows users to anonymously swipe photos and like or dislike the profiles of possible love matches based on photos, biographies and common interests. Once the app deems two users as being "matched", they can exchange messages and arrange a date. While the app has resulted in many finding love, like similar apps, it has been abused. AYS works on the concept of "act in haste, repent at leisure". The company says AYS is its response to keeping Tinder a safe environment. It said: "The early results...show us that intervention done the right way can be really meaningful in changing behaviour and building a community where everyone feels like they can be themselves."

WARM-UPS

1. DATING APP: Students walk around the class and talk to other students about dating apps. Change partners often and share your findings.

2. CHAT: In pairs / groups, talk about these topics or words from the article. What will the article say about them? What can you say about these words and your life?

dating / app / harassment / abusive / database / language / message / sure / version swipe / profile / biography / date / haste / repent / leisure / results / community

Have a chat about the topics you liked. Change topics and partners frequently.

3. PUNISHMENT: Students A strongly believe there should be very harsh punishments for online abuse; Students B strongly believe there shouldn't. Change partners again and talk about your conversations.

4. MATCHES: How important are these things in a partner? What would you say about yourself regarding these things? Complete this table with your partner(s). Change partners often and share what you wrote.

	Importance	Me
Intelligence
Looks
Politics
Humour
Hobbies
Salary

5. MESSAGE: Spend one minute writing down all of the different words you associate with the word "message". Share your words with your partner(s) and talk about them. Together, put the words into different categories.

6. APPS: Rank these with your partner. Put the best at the top. Change partners often and share your rankings.

INSERT THE VOWELS (a, e, i, o, u)

From <https://breakingnewsenglish.com/2105/210526-tinder.html>

The dating app Tinder has launched a new feature designed to help reduce online harassment. The app's new algorithm detects potentially abusive content and messages created by the user. It forces the user to create a debit card that flags a profile of abusive users and prevents logging in. After that, the message processor 'sends' a small box pops up that asks, "Are you sure?" or "YES?" Developers at Tinder are optimistic that the new feature will drastically cut the number of abusive messages sent on the platform. They say that while testing the app, the volume of such messages fell by 10 percent. The new feature has been rolled out in English and Japanese versions of the app.

The Tinder dating app allows users to anonymously swap photos and like or dislike the profiles of possible love matches based on photos, bios and common interests. Now the app demands users be "matched", they can exchange messages and arrange a date. While the app has resulted in many findings of love, like similar apps, it has been based. YES works on the concept of "cut in half", represent it as "is it". The company says YES is its response to keeping Tinder safe environment. It said: "The early results...show us that intervention on the right way can be really meaningful in changing behavior and building a community where everyone feels like they can be themselves."

Developers at Tinder are optimistic the new feature will drastically cut the number of abusive messages sent on the platform. They say that while testing the app, the volume of such messages fell by 10 percent. The new feature has been rolled out on English and Japanese versions of the app. The Tinder dating app allows users to anonymously swipe photos and like or dislike the profiles of possible love matches based on photos, biographies and common interests. Once the app deems two users as being "matched", they can exchange messages and arrange a date. While the app has resulted in many finding love, like similar apps, it has been abused. AYS works on the concept of "act in haste, repent at leisure". The company says AYS is its response to keeping Tinder a safe environment. It said: "The early results... show us that intervention on the right way can be really meaningful in changing behaviour and building a community where everyone feels like they can be themselves."
